

BULLIONBLOCK

Banking Without Banks

BullionBlock is a cross-border payment and settlement system of transactions on-chain, making the current banking constraints and costs unnecessary and avoidable.

The company is incorporated in Hong Kong, Australia, the USA, the UK and headquartered in Singapore, with further incorporations planned in other jurisdictions.

The BullionBlock Wallet equips you to control your money, protect your privacy and saves you money by reducing your fees. The blockchain powered BullionBlock multi-currency platform facilitates seamless financial transactions without undue financial influence by cutting out the mediators.

The traditional banking protocols are bypassed which further reduces costs with no currency exchange fees.

Transfer money across borders as fast as email between any currency at a fraction of the price you're currently pay today.

The BullionBlock payment engine and utility settlement token is distributed by transparent decentralized blockchain technology, which can't be abused by the banks or governments.

The emerging digital revolution, tokenization and blockchain technology will make most legacy banks irrelevant by 2025.

The account balance of your BullionBlock Wallet is protected with gold and silver bullion backing. Regardless of political instability, and how volatile crypto or fiat markets become, the value of your money remains stable.
